feminine hygiene

The disposal of feminine hygiene waste at first glance might seem to be an unimportant issue. But that's a misconception. There's long been a desire for something other than simply flushing it down the toilet or placing it in a waste bin. A clean, safe system where such waste can be disposed of easily and where people know that health, social and environmental concerns have been dealt with.

Worry free

Items flushed down the toilet pollute streams and rivers, can cause hormonal changes in wildlife and harmful organisms can enter the foodchain. Finding such items on our beaches and coastlines is socially unacceptable. Contrary to belief, there is no such thing as a soluble sanitary towel or tampon. Even more important than that there's a disposal service in place that takes the worry off you, your staff and your customers. Cannon Hygiene can offer you that service.

Concept disposal unit

Cannon offer customers a choice of two high-quality feminine hygiene waste disposal units. Our tried and tested foot-pedal operated unit is used in countless washrooms in locations around the world. Our new auto-lid version, powered by an infra-red sensor, allows for no contact with the unit whatsoever, giving even greater emphasis to preventing cross infection.

We don't supply you with just an empty unit. Each Cannon unit contains Activap, our new exclusive sanitiser composed of entirely natural substances. It ensures that even the last towel or tampon deposited in the unit will be rendered harmless and is effective against bacteria, moulds and viruses including HIV, Hepatitis B and C.

Cannon units promote the feeling that you are using a modern, hands-free washroom environment, one where personal safety and comfort has been prioritised.

Our service

To ensure totally clean and infection free units, unlike many other washroom service suppliers, we always remove units from the premises during servicing. This is done discreetly by well-trained, uniformed staff who are easily identified. All components are subject to the most stringent of inspection, are thoroughly washed and checks on functionality are made.

A small decision, a big change

Deciding to install a Cannon unit in your washroom might to you seem a small decision to make, but the changes it will bring could be immeasurable. In making your decision you are encouraging your staff and customers to dispose of their waste responsibly. You're minimising the risk of serious infection and thus ensuring your staff are not absent through illness. Not only that but you really are helping to protect the environment.

Not bad for a small decision. Well done!
